

Now it's Your Turn

Things to think about...

Write it down...

The "A Teachers Survival Guide for the Challenging Classroom" took a look at a number of different "student types". Can you think of others?

What would be some of the characteristics would the "types" you identified?

Would this information be beneficial to a new teacher you know?

Do you have additional ideas in handling all of the type identified that you could share with new teachers or teachers in especially difficult classrooms in your school?
